Our secondary three student, LAU MAN YUI, has expressed her points of view towards the topic about swapping lives with an animal on the verge of extinction. The article was published in SCMP (Young Post) on 26th January 2021.

Time to switch over

We asked our readers: if they could swap lives with someone for a day, who would they choose and what would they do?

An animal on the verge of extinction. I would like to experience the stress they are facing. I would collect "opinions" from other endangered animals on what humans should do to prevent their disappearance.

When I became human again, I would definitely share my experiences with others to encourage them to protect endangered species.
